

To the right, ultrasound and Doppler images showing the absence of different layers of the skin, consistent with aplasia cutis. On the left, actual photos of the studied lesions are shown.